of village of Tahanak, who had come there to buy or borrow money to enable him to start out on the Taha, he offered to return them if they would pay a certain sum on each head. The poor people had not obtained any money then, and here did not seem to be much likelihood of their doing so. In another village near there, whose name I have forgotten, the people were only allowed to get in their harvest on condition that half of the whole crop should be given to their Turkish neighbors. At Perak, which is still closer, the people who escaped the massacre and the pillage, after the burning of their houses, had still some cattle left in the fields. These were taken by the Turks of the neighboring village of Ustana, who still refused to return them when we were there. After we left, fearing we might go to the government and insist upon justice being done, they drove the cattle off into a distant part of the country and sold them. While Mr. Schuyler was at Arrat-Alan some Turks from a neighboring village seized six horses and went to the fields near the village and took them off. We spoke to the Madir of Arrat-Alan about this, but he said he could not do anything. He had no authority over the Turks of the village where the horses had been taken, and if he sent his captives there they would be beaten and sent back. At Odu-kai a man presented himself to us with a fresh slave on his head. He had discovered where the slaves were, and had sent with him from the Madir's authority him to take them, and this was the result of his attempt. On the way from Kilaure to Arrat-Alan we met three Turks driving about thirty head of cattle, which they were taking to the village for less than half price, and which had evidently been stolen. At Odu-kai a woman among many others came to us, and said that only two days before she had been working in the fields near the village with a man and a boy, her neighbors, when three Turks came, seized and bound the man, and then all three violated her. They were taken from the next village, and she was taken to the village with her at the time when they were very well. At Philippopolis a man and a boy came to Mr. Schuyler with fresh slaves on their heads, and a few days before they had been taken from the village in his hand and different parts of his body. At Silivria some people came to us with fresh slaves, and at Tarnovo some of the boys who were taken from the village and taken by the captives, who of course did not know he was in our camp. The night we were at Tarnovo a boy was killed by some Turks under circumstances which we had no time to investigate. Between Philippopolis and Tarnovo, a burnt village, where the people had nothing left, and said that a day passed but some women were violated by the Turks. Two men came to us from Malakia, with a wife and a child, and said that a day passed but some of violence was not committed, especially towards the women. Near Tarnovo we met a dozen men tied together in rows, and the guard of three or four men, who were conducting them to Tarnovo, and at the latter place Mr. Schuyler obtained convincing proof that one Ali Bey, who had been taken from the village, was still in the place, and that the other men were taken from a village of having belonged to the Insurrectionary Committee, taken there in prison, and maltreated them in various ways until they were glad to ransom themselves at the rate of from fifteen to fifty pounds apiece. There were three boys in and about Tarnovo, who were engaged in this profitable occupation. If you speak to the authorities about the acts of lawlessness that are committed every day within their own jurisdiction, they will either deny that they have occurred at all, and tell you that the victims are liars, or they will allow fully and openly that the acts are committed, and then these grievances as to prevent their recurrence.
